

Old oak tree with chime in front of wine cellar – 1800s

A gnarled old oak tree of the late 1700s with a piece of iron beam and chain grown into the bark. It was once used as a sounding-chime to regulate farm activities and labour.

